Onedrive On Mac Keeps Asking For Folder Locations

Without coming up with alternative ideas, or alternative (or better in your eyes) sky storage places, could anyone help me with the following: 1.. g Using Photosync to automatically upload new files / photos / videos from iPhones, iPads, Macs to the NAS, using Power Manager and Sync Folders Pro to automatically sync between NAS and iMac, we have found our desired 'sync-world', but we've identified some additional need for back-up security in case an accidental fire in our home.. Change the location of your OneDrive folder Content provided by Microsoft Select the Show hidden icons arrow on the taskbar, right-click.. How to choose iMac folders (specifically) to be uploaded/synced with OneDrive without having to duplicate/copy files to the OneDrive folder on my iMac 2.. For Dropbox (not an alternative to use for me, as I've too little space, and because of my 365 subscription space I'd rather use OneDrive), it is possible to right click on an internal iMac folder and choose Dropbox.. Happen to be, as an Office 365 Personal subscriber, I have a 1 TB OneDrive (SkyDrive) account.. I have downloaded the OneDrive app for Mac, but not sure how to set this up optimal, as the OneDrive folder needs to defined at a specific folder location on my Mac (per now, under 'My documents').. Having 3 folders (+ several subfolders) at different folder locations within my iMac undergoing the auto-sync process described above, I want these folders also to be synced/updated to OneDrive.. Select Change Apparently, there is only an option to choose which folders to sync in an OneDrive - iMac world, not the other way around.. Why isn't this possible with OneDrive Is it possible to install an OneDrive 'addition' to make it possible?.

Sorry if my post is misplaced, and if my question is inappropriate Having an iMac (1 TB) and a Seagate NAS (2 TB) as the central brain of automatically syncing files / pictures / videos in our home (e.. And then follow the instructions until you get to the screen where you can change your OneDrive folder's location.
